

Your first rabbits?

There's a lot to think about!!

Why not adopt a pair from a rescue?

- Neutered
- Bonded
- Vaccinated
- Health Checked

Visit your local rescue centre for more information and advice

Once bonded, rabbits should never be split. Pairs of rabbits come into rescue through no fault of their own. They are more difficult to rehome because most people go to rescues for a partner for an existing bunny, so sadly many pairs stay in rescue for years.

The reality is, if you are new to rabbits the ideal place for you to start is with a rescue who can offer advice. A ready bonded pair will save you the stress of bonding yourself, they will also have been neutered and vaccinated saving you £££'s on veterinary bills! Plus there is nothing more adorable than watching a loved up pair of bunnies!!

ACTION for Rabbits

It's time to make things happen!